

Ideas for Changing Students' Emotional Set Point

List some ideas for meaningful projects you can have students engage in.

What is the end point for an assignment you plan to give students? How can you improve its value and illustrate those benefits for your students? What will the process look like?

What are some examples of exemplary student work that you already have access to? How can you use your classroom environment to call attention to them?

What are some things that students are already doing well in your class? How can you reinforce these successes to them and highlight how those successes will benefit them going forward?

