

Figure 4.7: How Are All Of Our Stories Really Everyone's Stories?

How are all our stories really everyone's stories? In other words, how can you relate to these characters' feelings, actions, and reactions? How does your answer show we are all more the same than different?

Answer for each character:

What part of _____'s story is your story?

What part of _____'s story is your story?

What part of _____'s story is your story?

What part of _____'s story is your story?

How can trying to understand other people's perspectives enhance our understanding of ourselves and the world?

How can trying to understand other people's perspectives cause us to have more gratitude for the gifts in our own lives?

How can trying to understand other people's perspectives lead to greater personal happiness?