

Exercise: Participate in Collaborative Scoring

Once your team develops a common analytic rubric and issues an accompanying common assessment, engage in collaborative scoring so all team members can independently score their students' papers with consistency against the agreed-on rubric.

Use the following questions to guide this exercise.

- Are all members aware of the team's calibration session protocol? If not, how can the points in this section be communicated to everyone? (For example, members should know the team's logistic plans for meeting to discuss common formative assessment scores after they issue the assessment.)

- Who will facilitate our collaborative scoring session?

- Will we share preselected student writing samples in hard-copy form or electronically?

- After the calibration session, what are our plans for collecting and sharing anchor papers with students and with members of the team not present?
