

Traffic Light

As noted in chapter 8, the traffic light is used as a visual tool to have students self-assess where they are in their learning. Green means they are good to go, yellow means they may have some challenges but they are able to work through them, and red means they are stuck and need help.

Directions: Write a check mark on the line under the description that is closest to your understanding.

The graphic is a vertical rectangle with rounded corners, divided into three horizontal sections, each containing a circle. The top circle is light red, the middle is light yellow, and the bottom is light green. Each circle contains a self-assessment statement and a horizontal line for a checkmark.

I don't get this.
I need more explanation.

I am starting to get it, but I don't think I could explain it
to someone else.

I get it, and I could easily explain it to someone else.
